2-Objective of the course;

It is the study of a set of legal rules that are concerned with regulating economic – ١ relations between persons of international law (states and international organizations). The aim of the book is to provide the student in the virtual university, the law program, with a clear legal scientific material far from the complexities of differing jurisprudence, and commensurate with the development of international law in this field, relying on many references, articles and university theses in both Arabic and foreign languages that have been proven in the list of sources and references. There is no doubt that the topics of international economic law are very many, especially in light of this economic development taking place in the world, so some topics that are indispensable for the novice student to study law, such as the subjectivity of international economic law from definition, principles, rules and sources, were also studied. Very important topics at the level of the international community, such as international trade, international development, privatization, globalization, multinational companies and .many other topics
